

The Word in the World: Evangelical Writing, Publishing, and Reading in America, 1789- 1880 (Paperback)

By Candy Gunther Brown

The University of North Carolina Press, United States, 2004. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 1st New edition. 234 x 161 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book. The recent success of the Left Behind book series, which sold over 50 million books, points to an enormous readership of evangelical Christian literature that has not gone unnoticed by the mainstream publishing world. But this is not a recent phenomenon; the evangelical publishing community has been growing for more than two hundred years. Candy Gunther Brown explores the roots of this far-flung conglomeration of writers, publishers, and readers, from the founding of the Methodist Book Concern in 1789 to the 1880 publication of the runaway best-seller Ben-Hur. Brown shows how this distinct print community used the Word of the Bible and printed words of their own to pursue a paradoxical mission: purity from and a transformative presence in the secular world. Although scholars usually claim that religious publishing fell prey to the secularizing engines of commodification, Brown argues that evangelicals knew what they were doing by adopting a range of strategies, including the use of popular narratives and beautiful packaging. An informal canon of texts emerged in the nineteenth century consisting of sermons,...

Reviews

Without doubt, this is actually the best job by any publisher. It is written in basic phrases instead of difficult to understand. You will like the way the author publishes this publication.

-- Dr. Marvin Deckow

Complete guideline! It's such an excellent read. This really is for all who state there had not been a worth studying. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.
